Communicating with Teachers During the School Day

Teachers and families work hand in hand to support the achievement of our students. Regular communication is key to student success. Teachers have provided many ways for parents to stay connected about what is going on in the classroom and to “check in” or chat with the teacher about their children’s progress. Please remember that in-person check-ins or conversations with the teacher about school-related issues should be scheduled for the teacher’s non-instructional duty times. Teachers are not available to discuss individual student progress while they are teaching their classes, so please contact your child’s teacher for specific details about the best times to chat.
